POLITICAL LAW

V. Arangio-Ruiz, Intorno agli ἀστοὶ dell'Egitto greco-romano (Revue internationale des droits de l'antiquité vol. IV pp. 1—20).

In this article the author — on the basis of a rich material undertakes to find out the meaning of the word ἀστός. According to the author ἀστός without any other addition means the appartenance (of a man or woman) to the Greek community of Alexandria while Ἀλεξανδρεύς or a man indicated by giving his deme is a full-right citizen. The author concludes that no one text even of the III century A. D. does show that a non—Alexandrian would be called ἀστός.

V. Arangio-Ruiz, Sul problema della doppia cittadinanza nella Repubblica e nell'Impero Romano (Estratto dagli Scritti giuridici in onore Francesco Carnelutti, vol. IV pp. 53-77).

In this brilliant essay the author points out that the option between two courts did not presuppose double citizenship. Double citizenship did not exist in the Republican period, while in the Imperial epoch Roman citizenship could be combined with the citizenship of a city situated within the Roman Empire. This was, however, abolished by the Constitutio Antoniniana.

The first part of this essay is devoted to the „amicitia”, the second to the establishment of the Roman protectorate. For the jurist the most interesting is the page 244 which deals with the testament of Ptolemy Neoteros, the future Euergetes, who in 155 B. C. offered to the Romans the kingdom which will fall to him. One can say that from this moment, Euergetes having stabilized himself in Alexandria, Egypt became the direct dominion of the dominating power.
