concern private law, penal law and legal procedure. The rest of the documents concern administration, taxes, army etc. Each part is preceded by a useful index which enables the reader to make the best possible use of the compiled material. This volume is especially wellcomed because it brings the documents published during the last war and therefore at present hardly accessible. [H.K.]

The edition contains 5 papyri. No. 50 (II cent. A.D.) is a fragment of the Iliad H, 427—441; Nos 51 (87/88 A.D.) and 52 (I cent. A.D.) are loans of money; No 53 (II cent. A.D.) is a fragment of a receipt drawn by a certain libertus Theonos, Πέρισης τῆς ἐπιγονῆς for his patronus. The money is paid by means of the τραπεζίται. The pap. no. 54 (7 Nov. 449 A.D.) is a fragment of a petition to a riparius. [H.K.]

The fifty papyri composing this volume — the continuation of the volume I of the Merton Papyri edited in 1948 by H. I. Bell and C. H. Roberts — belong to the collection of the late Mr. Wilfred Merton. The whole collection of the papyri, published and unpublished, was purchased before the owner's death by Sir Chester Beatty and now forms part of the Chester Beatty Library in Dublin.

The second volume of the Merton Papyri, like the first one, has been edited in consideration of the needs of the paleography of the
