Millicent Hodson & Kenneth Archer

They are a dance and design team based in London. They are known internationally for their reconstructions of lost ballet masterpieces from the early 20th century, most notably Le Sacre du Printemps from 1913, with scenario and designs by Nicholas Roerich, music by Igor Stravinsky and choreography by Vaslav Nijinsky. Since its premiere in 1987, they have staged their reconstructed Sacre to acclaim in the United States, England, France, Finland, Portugal, Italy, Switzerland, Russia, Germany, Brazil and Japan. Four films have been made about their work on Le Sacre and three on other ballets in their repertoire. The couple lecture internationally, write books and articles about their productions and exhibit drawings from their projects.

Through Ballets Old & New, Hodson and Archer have built a repertoire of some twenty ballets, both reconstructions and creations. In addition to Le Sacre they have reconstructed two other ballets by Nijinsky for Diaghilev's Ballets Russes (Jeux and Till Eulenspiegel), five by Balanchine, mostly for Diaghilev (Valse Triste, Le Chant du Rossignol, La Chatte, Le Bal and Cotillon) and five by Jean Borlin for Rolf de Mare's Ballets Suedois which competed with Diaghilev's company in the 1920's (Dervishes, Skating Rink, Within the Quota and La Creation du Monde). Their creations include Stravinsky's opera Persephone, a version of Prokofiev's Pas d'Acier and a series of Greek ballets for Carla Fracci and other dancers in Italy.

Helen Sills

She followed her music degree from Nottingham University with an M.A. thesis exploring the relationship between violin techniques, as seen in the concerti grossi of the Late Baroque Era, and the development of the symphony, in the transition to the Early Classical Period.

Her professional career has been mainly as a freelance musician: as a Director of Music for the Girls' Public Day School Trust, a lecturer for the Workers' Educational Association, an examiner for the Associated Board of the Royal Schools of Music, a conductor for operatic societies, a private violin and piano teacher, and a freelance violinist. She has a special love of chamber music and is the violinist of the Plaegan Piano Trio which gives regular concerts.

In 1992 she gained a Ph.D from Birmingham University, with a thesis on the spirituality and creative philosophy of Igor Stravinsky. Since then, she has continued her research into this area, expanding her exploration into the field of neuroscience and making connections between her work and some of its recent discoveries. Fulfilling a life-long interest in the subject of Time, she is a member of the International Society for the Study of Time, which, together with its Founder, the late J.T.Fraser, has been a source of inspiration and support to her in her work as an independent scholar.

Helen now hopes to enjoy more time to write, living near Brighton in the UK and also in France, near Poitiers.

Howard Gardner

He is the John H. and Elisabeth A. Hobbs Professor of Cognition and Education at the Harvard Graduate School of Education. He also holds positions as Adjunct Professor of Psychology at Harvard University and Senior Director of Harvard Project Zero. Among numerous honors, Gardner received a MacArthur Prize Fellowship in 1981. He has received honorary degrees from twenty-nine colleges and universities, including institutions in Bulgaria, Chile, Greece, Ireland, Israel, Italy, South Korea and Spain. In 2005 and again in 2008, he was selected by Foreign Policy and Prospect magazines as one of the 100 most influential public intellectuals in the world. Most recently, Gardner received the 2011 Prince of Asturias Award for Social Sciences. The author of twenty-eight books translated into thirty-two languages, and several hundred articles, Gardner is best known in educational circles for his theory of multiple intelligences, a critique of the notion that there exists but a single human intelligence that can be adequately assessed by standard psychometric instruments.

During the past two decades, Gardner and colleagues at Project Zero have been involved in the design of performance-based assessments; education for understanding; the use of multiple intelligences to achieve more personalized curriculum, instruction, and pedagogy; and the quality of interdisciplinary efforts in education. Since the middle 1990s, in collaboration with psychologists Mihaly Csikszentmihalyi and William Damon, Gardner has directed the GoodWork Project—a study of work that is excellent, engaging, and ethical. More recently, with long time Project Zero colleagues Lynn Barndsen and Wendy Fischman, he has conducted reflection sessions designed to enhance the understanding and incidence of good work among young people. With Carrie James and other colleagues at Project Zero, he is also investigating the nature of trust in contemporary society and ethical dimensions entailed in the use of the new digital media. Among new research undertakings are a study of effective collaboration among non-profit institutions in education and a study of conceptions of quality, nationally and internationally, in the contemporary era. His latest book, Truth, Beauty, and Goodness Reframed, was published in the spring of 2011.
