EDITOR'S PREFACE

The 2nd issue of the Journal for this year has an even broader content than the previous one. I hope that the tendency towards an increased content continue in the future. The Journal has a huge advantage- all the texts are published online and the periodical is indexed by Google Scholar, EBSCO and CEEOL. The presence in the international data bases allows for a potential for first citations. This is very important for beginners in the world of science. I think that this will be the most important advantage for the Journal and this characteristic will enhance the value of the periodical in the near future.

This is also the last issue in which the requirements of the quality of texts for the Journal were reduced. It was the most difficult issue, that we have prepared to date. I hope the effort is worthy of the very hard work. Not everything is perfect but we hope to be better and better in our work.
