before it, in its generosity, exempted him from them. The inscription shows again that the bestowal with Roman citizenship did not exempt the beneficiary from liturgies in his former community.

L. WENGER, Universalgeschichtliches Denken zum römischen Rechte (Oesterr. Geschichtswissenschaft in Selbstdarstellungen, Innsbruck 1950).

Wenger in this essay gives a very interesting presentation of his life. The author describes his youth, his education, his studies in the university in Graz and Leipzig under Mitteis and his scientific career. Although the lectures attracted him, he found still more satisfaction in his seminar where he trained, following the examples of Mitteis and Hanausek the younger generation of romanists and papyrologists. And if at the end of his biography he expresses the wish that it may be granted to him after the completion of his work on the History of sources to see other things which he began finished, we, his friends and admirers, can only adhere to his wish.
