This article deals with the question of process and forms concerning the transition from the s.c. slavery system to the feudal system. It has in fact been written to supplement an article by E. M. Štajerman under the title: Problema padienija rabovladiel-českogo stroja (Vestnik Drevnej Istorii No. 2 (1953) p. 51—79) concerning the same subject. The article deserves attention of the papyrologists because it makes use to a large extent of papyrological material. His remarks on the slavery papyri of the VI cent. are also noteworthy.

Eduardo Volterra, Su tavoletta accadica proveniente da Rās Šamrah (Estr. Acad. nazionale dei Lincei, Red. di Classe di sc. mor. stor. e filol., Estr. dal. fasc. 7—12, Serie VIII, vol. VII, 1952).

Emile Szlechter, L'affranchissement en droit suméro-accadien (Extrait de la Revue "Archives d'Histoire du Droit Oriental et Revue internationale des Droits de l'Antiquité", I, 125—196).

Joseph Klíma, La posizione degli schiavi secondo le nuove leggi pre-hammurapiche (Estr. dagli Studi in onore di V. Arangio-Ruiz, vol. IV, 225—240).

These three dissertations which deal with the law of slavery and are undoubtedly very interesting for the papyrologists, will be discussed by Klíma in his report concerning the cuneiform law.

THE LAW OF PROPERTY

R. Taubenschlag, Miscellanea papirologica (Aegyptus XXXII, p. 459—465).

This article is devoted to the  $\delta\acute{\iota}\kappa\eta\ \kappa\alpha\rho\tau\omicron\upsilon$  and to the question in what manner the Greco-Egyptian law protects the proprietor of the ground against someone who intends to build or who has already built on that ground. The problem in what manner this law protects the proprietor who intends to build on his ground and is impeded by someone, is also discussed.
