The inscription which is the subject of this study is not unknown. Its discoverer T. B. Mitford submitted it to the attention of the members of the Vth International Congress of Papyrology at Oxford in 1937 and published the next year in the Congress Acts.

The study of Miss Lenger consists first of all of the reedition of the inscription with a commentary, composed of two parts: of a general introduction in which the author examines the questions concerning history, law and diplomacy, connected with the whole document and of a detailed commentary in which she discusses minutely the text and analyzes the contents of its dispositions.

Generally, the author tries to establish the most probable sense of the inscription, and its importance for our knowledge of the Ptolemaic legislation.

H. G. Gundel, Bibliothek der Justus Liebig-Hochschule (vormals Universitätsbibliothek) Giessen: Kurzberichte aus den Papyrus-sammlungen 1—3 (1956).

The first of these booklets is a report on the VIII International Congress of Papyrology with regard to the collection of papyri in Giessen. The second gives information on this collection, with bibliographical notes. The third — contains the author's observations concerning the catalogue of the Papyri Bibliothecae Universitatis Gissensis.

The new volume of the BL., after the death of Preisigke and Bilabel being continued by the three above mentioned editors, deserves the same appreciation as that of their predecessors. The work is absolutely necessary for every papyrologist. It is desirable that the 2nd part of the III volume should appear as soon as possible.

M. David, Ein Beitrag zu P. Col. 123, 13—17 (Symbolae R. Taubenschlag dedicatae = Eos 48, 1 [1956] 191—195).

In this article the author examines the transcription of P. Col. 123, 13—17 by Westermann and Schiller, and offers a translation of this passage which runs: "Although you request without right that the sale of hypothecated properties be rescinded, nevertheless the prefect of the province will order that you recover possession of the plots seized by force without agreement".

V. Arangio-Ruiz, Minima de negotiis (Studi in on. U. E. Paoli, 1—9).

This interesting study contains a critical examination of some documents included in the first edition of Negotia and others to be inserted in the new edition of the work.

V. Arangio-Ruiz, Apokrimata — Decisions of Septimius Severus on Legal Matters etc. (Gnomon 28 [1956] 186—192).

This article is an excellent survey of P. Col. 128. The author discusses many important legal problems raised by the edition of Apokrimata.

As ZSS 74, 523 informs — the text will be published in "Erlangen Beiträge".

E. Seidl, Neue klassische Konstitutionen aus den Papyri (Studi in on. A. Calderini — R. Paribeni II [1957] 307—315).

The article shows that the rescript in P. Col. 123 § 5 extended the Sc. Velleianum, and P. Col. 123 § 12 — the lex Plaetoria et in integrum restitutio (cf. my *Law*² 149, 180₁₇₋₁₈ and my Rezeption des röm. Pr. [Studi Bonfante I, 392₁₄₄]) to the peregrines in Egypt before the C.A. The rescripts in §§ 9, 10, 2, and 4 applied, however, constitutions, which had been obligatory for the whole Empire since its very beginning.
