been universally acknowledged. When, however, unfortunate circumstances allied to a striving for absolute perfection appeared likely to postpone indefinitely the publication of the second part, he generously agreed to hand over his copies, and with equal magnanimity Miss Préaux agreed to take over the task of publication. She has reexamined the originals (often in much less legible condition than they were thirty years ago), constantly tested and reviewed Tait's results, and set them in the context of her own profound knowledge of Greco-Roman Egypt. In this bilingual publication, in which Tait's notes are in English and Miss Préaux's in French, the reader will judge for himself how well her scholarship matches his, and how fortunate the Egypt Exploration Society has been to secure her co-operation.

Professor J. Bingen and M. Martin Wittek have undertaken the long task of preparing the indices not only for this part but also Part I. They will form a separate publication which will not be long delayed. The publication, contains texts from the Roman and Byzantine periods: receipts, orders, accounts, lists, memoranda, private letters, private documents and private contracts. Among them these texts will be remarkable for a jurist: No. 1978 (15—26 A.D.) a loan of wheat; No. 1974 (10 B.C.) probably a mandate; No. 1972 (17 ? B.C.) also a mandate of characteristic contents: Δὸς τὸ ἐνέχυρον Πικῶς μόριον; Nos. 1988—90 (I—II, II and III cent. A.D.) permissions from an ἰστωνάρχης, like W.O. 1154-1156; O. Wilb. Brooklyn 75 (cf. C. Préaux, Les ostraca grecs de la collection Charles Edwin Wilbour au Musée de Brooklyn 103 ff.).
