
Autorzy

Wrocławski Rocznik Historii Mówionej 6, 244-248

2016

Artykuł został opracowany do udostępnienia w internecie przez Muzeum Historii Polski w ramach prac podejmowanych na rzecz zapewnienia otwartego, powszechnego i trwałego dostępu do polskiego dorobku naukowego i kulturalnego. Artykuł jest umieszczony w kolekcji cyfrowej bazhum.muzhp.pl, gromadzącej zawartość polskich czasopism humanistycznych i społecznych.

Tekst jest udostępniony do wykorzystania w ramach dozwolonego użytku.

AUTORZY / AUTHORS

Unnur María Bergsveinsdóttir – is an Icelandic historian. She has worked with oral history both as a researcher and as a project manager for the Icelandic Centre for Oral History from 2007–2009. She is now focused on an oral history project that chronicles the origin of Icelandic punk culture in the early 1980s.

Katarzyna Bock-Matuszyk – historian; doctor of humanities, graduate of the Historical Institute at the University of Wrocław, coordinator of research projects of the „Remembrance and Future” Centre (Wrocław), member of the Polish Oral History Association.

katarzyna.matuszyk@zajezdnia.org

Hanna Gospodarczyk – graduated from the Institute of Ethnology and Cultural Anthropology (University of Warsaw) and from Chair of Arabic and Islamic Studies (University of Warsaw). PhD-student at University of Warsaw, Artes Liberales Department and Historical Department. She conducted research in Lithuania and Poland and was granted with scholarships in Copenhagen (Denmark) and Tunis (Tunisia).

hania.gospodarczyk@gmail.com

Marcin Jarzabek – historian and sociologist; assistant professor in the Institute of History at Jagiellonian University in Krakow. Studied in Jagiellonian University and in Central European University in Budapest. Doctoral dissertation (defended in 2014) was dedicated to the collective memory of the First World War veterans in interwar Poland and Czechoslovakia. Member of the Board of the Polish Oral History Association.

marcin.jarzabek@uj.edu.pl

María Smáradóttir Jóhönnudóttir – born in 1971, in Reykjavík, Iceland. She is a practical nurse and works for a long time in that field, in 2011 she started her history studies in University of Iceland, and finished the B.A. in 2014, dealing with the subject of immigrants to Iceland.

Michał Kierzkowski – historian; in 2010 he defended his PhD thesis entitled Oral history as a research method for history. Historical-methodological case study at the Institute of History of UAM in Poznań. Author of several scientific articles, co-editor of collaborative works. He published among others in “Kwartalnik Historyczny” (History Quarterly), “Historyka – studia metodologiczne” (Methodological studies of a historian) as well as in “Porównania” (Comparisons). Scholarship recipient of the Kościuszko Foundation (2007–2008). His interests evolve around methodology of history, theory of memory and oral history with particular focus on Central Europe.

exteberria@wp.pl

Wiktoria Kudela-Świątek – took her M.A. degrees in history (2007) and in Russian philology (2010) from Jagiellonian University; in 2012 she defended her PhD dissertation, National- and Religion-motivated Persecution as Recollected by Poles in Kazakhstan. A Study of Oral History at Jagiellonian University's. She benefited from scholarships granted by the Polish government (2001–2007) and by the Local Government of Vinnytsia in Ukraine (2009–2010), she was also a grantee of the Polish Ministry of Science and Higher Education's scholarship at the Pushkin State Russian Language Institute in Moscow (2009–2010). She is a member of the International Oral History Association and Polish Oral History Association.

ry Association. Author of three monographs, she has edited or co-edited several publications and written a number of articles in Polish, Russian and Ukrainian, dealing primarily with oral history, but also touching upon the subjects of memory (including the realms of memory and collective memory), the histories of Poles exiled to the East in the 19th and 20th centuries, the Holodomor, Soviet mass-deportations, every-day life in the Soviet Union and identity transformations in the former member states of the Communist Bloc. Her book on the history of the persecution of the Poles deported to Kazakhstan during WWII, Odpamiętane... O historii mówionej na przykładzie narracji kazachstańskich Polaków o represjach na tle narodowościowym i religijnym (2013), was nominated for the 2014 Identitas Prize for the Best Book in the Humanities.

sth_2004@o2.pl

Marta Kurkowska-Budzan – Assistant Professor at the Department of History of Historiography and Methodology of History, the Institute of History at Jagiellonian University in Krakow. She has held postdoctoral fellowships at the US Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington, DC (2002) and the Remarque Institute, New York University (2001). Her recent research concerns the cultural anthropology of sport and leisure in Poland 1945–1989 and projects in which she has been engaged for past two years include: “Little Township, 1945–1989” and “Lifestyles in Communist Poland”. A recently completed project on the symbolization of the past in contemporary public and private discourses resulted in the book Antykomunistyczne podziemie zbrojne na Białostocczyźnie. Analiza współczesnej symbolizacji przeszłości (Anti-communist armed underground in the Białystok region. The analysis of contemporary symbolization of the past), 2009. She is also the author of Historia zwykłych ludzi. Współczesna angielska historiografia dziejów społecznych (History of the people. English social historiography), 2003, and co-author of the first Polish textbook on oral history: Historia mówiona. Elementarz (Oral History. The Primer), 2008, as well as co-editor of anthology Oral History. Challenges of Dialogue, 2009. She is a member of editorial boards of „Historical Anthropology Yearly, Status Quo. Anti-disciplinary Journal” and „Historyka. Studies in Methodology”.

marta.kurkowska-budzan@uj.edu.pl

Helga Ólafsson – a journalist and PhD-student in media studies at the University of Iceland. She writes about media representation of immigrants in Iceland. Her master thesis was about the uses of Icelandic media among Polish migrants in Iceland.

Robert Rydzewski – is a cultural anthropologist and documentary radio-maker in the Reportage and Documentary Studio at the Polish National Radio. Currently he is a PhD-student in Cultural Anthropology Program at Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań. His scientific interests are transformation of post-Yugoslav cities in Republic of Macedonia and Polish contemporary migration.

rydzewski.robert@gmail.com

Ewa Sowińska – studied history at the University of Wrocław as well English literature at the University of Bologna. Since 2014 she has been working in the “Remembrance and Future” Centre, coordinating research projects.

ewa.sowinska@zajezdnia.org

Marek Szajda – PhD-student in history at the University of Wrocław. He is interested in Jewish studies, history of Poland in 20th century and oral history.

szajda.marek@gmail.com

Michal Šmíd – editor of the www.memoryofnations.eu Internet portal in Prague, worked as a journalist and web editor. From 2001 employed in the Office for Nazi Victims set up by the Czech–German Future Fund. Since 2008 working in the Publishing Section of the Institute for the Study of Totalitarian Regimes of the Czech Republic and cooperating with the Post Bellum Foundation and Czech Radio on the internet portal that provides an online archive of witness testimonies, called Memory of Nations (Paměť národa in Czech).

248

Joanna Wojdon – is an associate professor at the Institute of History, University of Wrocław, Fulbright and Kościuszko Foundation alumna. She specializes in history education, public history and post-WWII Polish American history, is a board member of the International Society for History Didactics, of the Polish American Historical Association and of the Presidium of the Migration Studies Committee of the Polish Academy of Sciences. Her monograph White and Red Umbrella. The Polish American Congress in the Cold War Era (1944–1988) has just been published by Helena History Press.

joanna.wojdon@uwr.edu.pl

Anna Wojtyńska – an anthropologist, graduate of ethnology at the Warsaw University, currently PhD-student at the Faculty of Anthropology at the University of Iceland. For the past few years she has conducted research on Polish migration to Iceland.

Karolina Żłobicka – is a PhD-student at the Institute of History at the Jagiellonian University. Her research interests are oral history, memory studies and social history of communism. She took part in many projects based on oral history and biographical approach. She is president of the Polish Oral History Association.

karolina.zlobicka@gmail.com